Granville County Library System Migrates to EnvisionWare

When it came time to select a new vendor partner, Granville County Library System turned to EnvisionWare for computer and print management and mobile printing.

"In my prior position, the Library was an EnvisionWare computer and print management software customer and we were very happy with the products and support," said Granville County Library System Director Will Robinson. "When I joined Granville we were interested in migrating to a new system and I knew I could count on EnvisionWare for reliability and service."

Granville County Library System is located in North Carolina and serves a population of over 60,000 residents, including the heavily populated counties of Durham and Wake, as well as more rural areas to the North.

The ability to offer mobile printing was also a factor in the decision to migrate to EnvisionWare. "Our South branch is connected to a high school and students and other community members come to the Library with their computers and tablets," said Robinson. "This service enables them to print and it integrates completely with EnvisionWare's LPT:One™ print management so we have a single vendor we can rely on."
